PUNCTUALITY.

Is the life of Business.

THE Subscribers are determined to sell their goods on the most reasonable terms which they can be afforded. In order that they may be enabled to do so, on the usual terms of credit, they deem it their duty to notify their customers, that they will expect prompt payment. All accounts are considered due on the first day of January of each year, except by special agreement; at which time they will require the same to be closed; if not, they will charge interest after that time.

And all accounts due on the first day of January of each year, and not closed within three months after that time, they will consider themselves at liberty to put them into the hands of an officer for collection.

In every well conducted business there should be some principles and rules by which it is governed; and by adopting the above rules we shall be enabled to do justice to ourselves and to all concerned. And what will be better, we shall be enabled to sell our goods to our customers on a credit at cash prices.

We return our sincere thanks to our friends for their liberal patronage, and will try to serve them, so as to meet a continuance of the same.

His stock is extensive—New—and bought for cash all of which he offers for sale at as low prices as can be bought in any Southern City. He deems it unnecessary to enter into a general enumeration of the articles of which his assortment is composed, or to hold out any inducement, which may not in the practical operations of his business be realized, but simply to state that he intends to keep his store furnished at all times with the best and most desirable articles, and (as far as possible) to do an assortment of everything that belongs strictly to his line of business, and that the buying and selling of Dry Goods will constitute his sole and leading pursuit, and leave it to those with whom he shall be so fortunate as to deal to decide whether he can sell as cheap as others engaged in the same business.
